Matilda Internet :: Price vs speed comparison

As well incredible performance compared to traditional aDSL1, aDSL2 is great value for money also. Previously with aDSL1 on top of your monthly broadband charges, there was also Telstra line rental around $27 - $30 a month. With aDSL2+ this is no longer applicable, the line rental component & the internet broadband charge are incorporated into the one monthly fee.

In the chart below you will see that taking into account Telstra home line plus line rental ($27.95 per month) and entry level 256k/64k 1GB aDSL plan (slowest speed available), total monthly spend is $61.90 / month. With aDSL2, the same 1GB plan, just up to 78! times faster is just $59.95 / month.

1GB & 20GB unlimited pricing for aDSL1 compared to aDSL2 taking into account the required line rental for aDSL that is no longer applicable with aDSL2.

As well as the overall saving on rental + broadband charges, for those wishing to also use the line for voice & telephony call charges on Matilda’s aDSL2 are cheaper in comparison to Telstra’s HomeLine service with 17c untimed local calls, 9c / minute STD calls anytime of the day & 30 c / minute calls to mobiles. For full voice & telephony pricing information please see Matilda voice pricing matrix.

For those wishing to purely use the line for an broadband data service, the telephony can be disabled completely rendering the line purely a dedicated data service with no calls possible in or out.

For more information & pricing on aDSL2+ see the aDSL2 pricing & information datasheet or visit Matilda’s website <http://www.matilda.net.au>.
